THE HERITAGE

The Raweekanlaya Bangkok was originally built in the late 1800's as the residence of the royal governess of His Majesty King Vajiravudh or Rama VI, the sixth monarch of Siam under the house of Chakri, considered the father of Thai nationalism. The residence is also remnant of Thewet Palace, which used to be located in the area.

The Raweekanlaya Bangkok was originally as the residence of the royal governess, Khun Tat Pheungboon Na Ayutthaya, of His Majesty King Vajiravudh or Rama VI. Khun Tat Pheungboon was also the mother of two noblemen, loyal and close aides to the King Rama VI.

One of the noblemen, Chao Phraya Ramrakob, was the youngest member of the Siam aristocracy to receive the title of Chao Phraya or Most Senior Commissioned Officer in the history of Rattanakosin era. His brother was Phraya Aniruttheva, the commissioned officer served as the rector of the Royal Military and the Master of Ceremony.

King Rama VI was one of Thailand's highly renowned artists, writing modern novels, short stories, newspaper articles, poems, plays, and journals. The rooms at the resort bear names from the celebrated play of King Rama VI called "Mattanapata". Various areas of the resort are also named after flowers ethnic to Thailand.

The King possessed an inherent ability to communicate traditional Thai way of life through his works. His legacy paved the way for future generations of readers and writers in the kingdom. The Raweekanlaya Bangkok draws inspiration from King Rama VI and each room has been uniquely appointed with a poem from Thai literature, thereby depicting the Thai culture and society.

Vajiravudh or King Rama VI was the sixth monarch of Siam under the House of Chakri.

A lush garden scene with a brick path, trees, and a building in the background. The scene is filled with greenery, including large trees and various plants. A brick path leads through the garden, and a building is visible in the background. The overall atmosphere is peaceful and natural.

Wellness is the key to longevity and is the prime feature of the resort. The guest can bust their stress with a holistic and rejuvenating experience. Large areas of resort have been dedicated to greenery with an organic garden, where guests can pick their food ingredients for a bespoke meal. The pool bar serves healthy drinks throughout the day.

You can rest in the canopy of trees during the day with a gushes of fresh air, right in the middle of densely populated Bangkok city.

WELLNESS

IMPERIAL SPA

Amidst the resort is the Imperial Spa, which offers traditional Thai massage therapies which have been carried down across generations. The therapists have been trained at Phothalai of Wat Po descent.

Wat Po - a temple which also became Thailand's first ever university, is a bastion of Thai medical heritage and Thai massage, and with astonishing foresight the temple founded the Wat Po Traditional Medical School more than 60 years ago. Phothalai - Wellness & Longevity is a continuation of "Tangtrongjit" a family tradition riding on the back of four generations of knowledge and experience, protecting a refining ancient arts and techniques that have stood the test of time.

Given its strategic location, Thailand (or the Kingdom of Siam as it was once known) had become an essential link in international trade during the reign of King Rama V and maintained an active and diverse relationship with many countries. In line with the internationalization, the Thai cuisine evolved under the reigns of King Chulalongkorn (Rama V) and King Vajiravudh (Rama VI), with influx of western elements into the cuisine of the era. The Rawaekanlaya Bangkok, being the house of the royal governess of King Rama VI, reminiscences into the transitional cuisines of the time and brings alive best of both western as well as Thai culinary experiences.

CUISINE

THE RAWEEKANLAYA DINING

The preparations at RaweeKanlaya have been blissfully crafted while placing a high emphasis on health and sustainability. The ingredients include healthy and natural ingredients like organic brown rice, sea salt and seasonal organic produce from small scale-farmers, thereby also supporting the local community. A number of products are sourced from international artisan producers, including the ones from Thailand.

You Pick. We Cook.

The Raweekanlaya Dining strives to make your experience at Raweekanlaya truly personal and memorable. Guests are invited to pick the major ingredients from our organic garden, guided by our Chef and a special dish is prepared from the pick.

The Raweekanlaya Bangkok features 38 guest rooms carefully designed to reflect the heritage of Old-Siam with contemporary touches. It is a true urban resort with over 900 square meters of lush greenery, highlighted by a 120 years old Banyan tree.

RESORT

A high-angle photograph of a modern outdoor swimming pool. The pool is rectangular with a blue mosaic tile border and is surrounded by a dark grey wooden deck. Several lounge sofas with grey, blue, and yellow cushions are arranged around the pool. In the background, there is a multi-story building with a balcony and palm trees. The scene is lush with greenery, including various trees and bushes. A semi-transparent text box is overlaid on the right side of the image.

Located next to the swimming pool is the pool bar, where fruit juices and cold fare can be enjoyed during the day, which turn into artisan cocktails with the fall. All this, while relaxing on our chaise lounge sofas, amidst calming sights of foliage and chirping of birds. Listen to the sound of nature, bask under the rays of sunshine or relax beneath the canopy of trees, all in middle of Bangkok city.

ACCOMMODATION
